I'm very pleased to announce that one of my earlier instructional books may be re-released as a "Classic" in the near future. It will have some very minor updates to make sure the art supplies are current. No other information is available at this time. Updates concerning the publication and release will be posted on my website.

If you would like to see more information, including photographs from past workshops, check the "Workshop" section on my website. Complete information, including downloadable registration forms and this newsletter are available.

About the workshops - My workshops are very informal and relaxed. The common goal is to learn more about art and enhance our own creative efforts. That means you don't even have to be a wildlife artist to participate. We have still-life painters; landscape artists; even carvers and they all work in a variety of mediums including watercolor, acrylic, pastels, colored pencil, oil and more. Joining a group of artists for a workshop of painting and sharing is truly worthwhile. This creative camaraderie is both inspiring and fulfilling. If you have any questions about my workshops, or would like to be put on my workshop mailing list, please contact me.

I sponsor two workshops each year. One is in the spring and one is in the fall. Both of these are located in the northern part of Michigan's Lower Peninsula. I also do workshops for other art groups and organizations. If you know of such a group that might be interested, have them contact me for information. The workshops begin with Friday evening registration (no meal) or Sunday afternoon if you are only doing the second session. The workshop ends approximately at 2:00 pm on the last day.
